GPL Spooktacular offers more Halloween family fun

Greenwood Public Library will be hosting a brand new Halloween community party

Greenwood Public Library will be hosting a brand new community Halloween party this year – GPL Spooktacular. This all-ages event takes place from 12pm – 4pm on Saturday, October 28th. Events include trick-or-treating, face painting, crafts, and a mad scientist lab for the kids, as well as an escape room for teens and adults.

The closing of the party is storyteller Stephanie Holman, who will be telling “scary” stories for all ages. Holman is a professional storyteller with twenty eight years of experience speaking in front of children, teens, and adults. Staff at Greenwood Public Library are excited to have a storyteller as a part of GPL Spooktacular.

“At GPL we’re pushing for a Reading Revolution by focusing on the importance of reading for an individual as well as the community. Listening to stories can be just as rewarding as reading a book, and it’s not just for the very young. We’re so excited to be able to host Stephanie Holman at this year’s Halloween party!” states Librarian Valerie Holbrook. “This will be a fun, family-friendly event that we hope the Greenwood community will enjoy.”

Registration is not required for this free event. Costumes are very much encouraged.
