

Seasonings Persuading Success
By Eloina Rendon

There once was a hero named Sugar! He was a hero who lived in a big city called SkyScraper. The reason for the name of this city was that it just had a lot of skyscrapers! It was a big city that was always sunny and nice. It always smelled like cheese pizza that was super-hot and warm, and it would also smell like yummy cold delicious ice cream that would drip down your face whenever you would eat it! Every day the sun beams danced on the skyscrapers making everyone happy! But there were also two bad guys that were always called the evil twins! Their names were Salt and Pepper! They would destroy the city trashing the whole place! They were so evil that they ate all the ice cream from the ice cream truck! But Sugar was going to try to stop them!

One day when Sugar was in his pantry (which was his house) he was planning how to take over the Evil Twins. His plan was to capture the Twins and make them turn kind. He thought it would be as easy as cutting a block of butter with a hot knife! But when he went into the city he couldn't find the Evil Twins anywhere.....until he heard a loud bang! He immediately knew it was the Twins. Though when he heard this sound and rushed over to the noise there was nothing. Sugar knew something was strange and he was going to get to the bottom of it! He then heard another noise and rushed over to the noise again, but as you know it was nothing. He kept doing this until he heard little evil giggles. Sugar looked above himself and saw the Twins! He chased after them but they kept running away! So Sugar made a trap! It was a box with the Evil twins' favorite chocolates! The trap worked and Sugar caught them and took them to his house to ask them a serious question.

“Why have you been doing all of this evil stuff?” said Sugar

“I Guess we should tell him.” Shrugged Salt.

“Well the true reason was that we have never actually had a chance to be good and kind.” Pepper said this and while he was explaining Sugar had a sad look on his face.

Then Sugar said “Well today is your lucky day because I am going to let you have a chance to be nice, sweet and super kind!” When Sugar said this, the Twins were shocked!

“But why?” Salt said, in a very, very happy way.

“Well because it’s the right thing to do!”

“Okay, then let’s do it!”

So, then the Twins and Sugar worked together fixing all the mistakes the Twins made. Which were destroying a tv, eating all the ice cream in the ice cream truck and so much more. Sugar and the Twins worked together and after doing all the good things that they did the Twins realized that you should always be kind and that everyone matters!

The next day Sugar showed the twins his layer. Which had rainbows, bright colors, fairy lights and nice quotes on the walls. The layer was pretty and sweet! The Twins loved it and bounced around all over the place. But the real reason that Sugar brought them there was to come up with a name for their super squad! The first idea was from Pepper. He said “ We should name ourselves The Seasonings!” After Salt heard this he disagreed he said “No let’s call ourselves Persuading good and being successful!” But Sugar disagreed. Then it hit him “We shall call ourselves S.P.S which stands for “seasonings persuading success”! Or it can stand for Sugar, pepper and salt!”

“I love it!” said Pepper.

“Me too” announced Salt! After coming up with a name they told everyone and from then on, they were called S.P.S.

The S.P.S group helps other seasonings be nice, good and sweet! Sugar succeeded his mission and was successful the rest of his life! The Twins were the same as Sugar now, they were sweet, kind and nice! The S.P.S was doing good and being sweet to others like we should be to others in our own world and like how we should know that everyone matters!
